

Scrum Meetings

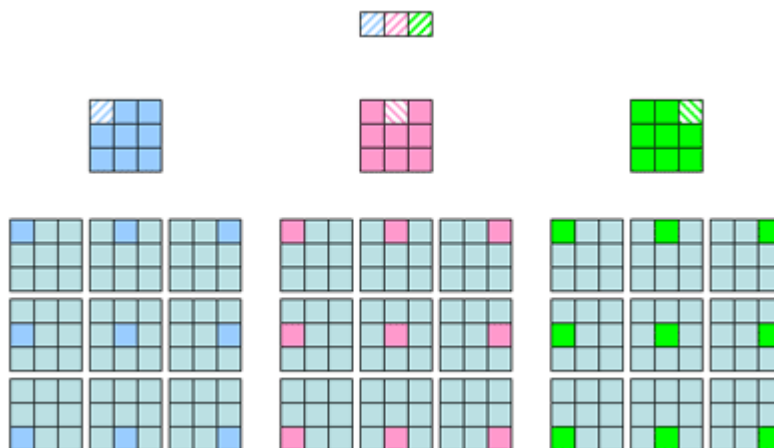

They are daily short meetings that take about 15 minutes or so. During a meeting, every member of a team shares his activities that he is working on, obstacles they are facing, and future projects. They do this by responding the following questions:

According to (""), below, there is an example about the questions that should answer for each team members.

- What did you do yesterday?
- Are you having any problems in your way?
- What will you be working on today?

Scrum of Scrum Meetings

It is large meeting composed with several teams. Each team designates someone to represent the team in order to share their activities with other teams. The meetings are held daily.

The Scrum method can be applied in the last waterfall project we did as a team. For example, every team member should be responsible with one or two activities. Once everyone is done, we should put all the pieces together for the final product.
